Art Unit 1713

The non-statutory double patenting rejection, whether of the obviousness-type or non-obviousness-type, is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent. In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); and In re Goodman, 29 USPQ 2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(b) and (c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a non-statutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.78(d).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-19 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-20 of copending application Serial No. 10/313,779. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instantly claimed truck tire is seen to have the same rubber composition as identified in the claims of the copending application. The claims of the copending application further identify carbon black and precipitated silica as desirable ingredients. Given the overlap in scope, the instantly claimed invention is rendered prima facie obvious from the claims of the copending application.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Halasa et al., U.S. Patent 6,103,842.

This patent is generic as to the specific tires to be utilized. Given the generic nature of the description of the tires to be utilized as well as the breadth of the instantly claimed truck tire, there is seen to be sufficient description within this patent so as to render a truck tire prima facie obvious. See specifically the Background of the Invention.

The instantly claimed high trans random styrene butadiene is extensively disclosed at columns 3 and 4 of the patent. The mixing of the high trans styrene butadiene rubber with a high cis polybutadiene rubber is suggested at column 9 lines 60+. The incorporation of the carbon black and silica is seen to be rendered prima facie obvious from the description of the tires and the art recognized conventionality of the need for both carbon black and silica in tire manufacturing and compounding applications.

The instantly claimed property limitations are seen to be either prima facie obvious or anticipated from the compositions of the prior art given the close structural similarities of the compositions. Case law has well established that it is reasonable to presume that the prior art will possess properties which either anticipate or render obvious those properties as instantly claimed when the compositions are substantially the same. Applicants' instantly claimed catalyst system is seen to be rendered prima facie obvious from the description at column 6 lines 21+. In view of this disclosure, applicants' claims are rendered prima facie obvious.
